UK Outlook for Friday 9 Apr 2021 to Friday 23 Apr 2021:
A strong signal for generally settled conditions looks most likely through the start to middle of April period. This will likely bring drier than average conditions for much of the UK but there is the potential for more unsettled and changeable conditions to develop across northwestern areas, especially later in this period. Temperatures are most likely to be at or above average for the time of the year after a colder than average start. Any further cold interludes are likely to be short-lived and likely confined to the north. Thereafter it is most likely that settled conditions will prevail for much of the UK, especially so in the south.
